Armour's Student Newspaper

Armour's student newspaper is now nearly eight years old, young as newspapers go, but even so, with a past beyond the ken of any of our present undergraduates. Few students know how many difficulties cluttered its early path, or have any idea of what changes its mere presence on the campus has wrought. On these points, interesting as they may be, it will suffice to say that many difficulties were overcome, and that the presence of the News has produced a noticeable change in undergraduate spirit and activity at Armour. But more should be said, and more should be understood, about the exact position and the exact function of the paper in the Armour scene.

In the first place, the News is strictly a student newspaper. It holds before the student body a standing invitation to any man who has the elementary ability to write simple English and to follow instructions, and who is willing to do a little work, to become a member of its staff. Promotions are made strictly on a basis of ability and service. There has never been the faintest suggestion that the News is controlled, or even influenced by any minority group of clique.

The primary aims of the editorial staff of the News are, and always have been, to put out as good a newspaper as is possible. This means, first of all, that it must be interesting and entertaining, and to this end not only does it publish the best feature material it can obtain, but its treatment of news matter puts a premium on reader interest. The paper strives to cover every bit of news that is of interest to the Armour student, and to present it to him in an attractive and palatable guise.

Governed entirely by a sense of responsibility, the editorial policy of the News, is perhaps not quite so clearly defined as its news policy. Its editorial columns serve as an open forum for the airing of all kinds of views on every kind of subject, but they also serve the further purpose of advocating definitely the policy of the News editors on many matters of interest to Armour men, not only as students, but as American and world citizens. The complete justice of the latter function is not as well proved as it might be, but both facts and opinions seem to confirm it, and the function is performed with full realization that it implies a responsibility to weigh, in every case, the editor's fundamental duties to the students, to the Institute, and to society.

To the foregoing aims and responsibilities may be added one more, a duty which every editorial board keeps in view, the duty to place the News, when it is time for them to leave it, in the hands of a group who appreciate fully what the functions of the paper are, and who have the ability to add to its proficiency in performing them.

With this issue of the News, the staff which has laid its course during the past year takes its leave, affirming that the foregoing principles have always governed its policies, and knowing that the staff to follow will continue to hold them in view.

The Players' Audiences

The audience of Armour's plays is not worthy of the earnest efforts of the players. If all the real work and time that is put in by each and every one of the characters in the cast and the individuals backstage, were known to the unappreciative audience, then acceptance of the finished product would not be one of a three year infant. (Refer to the audience of "Dust of the Road," which had to be told to be quiet.) It's almost sad when boys at a school like Armour are not big enough to absorb the splendid productions Mr. Hendricks offers them.

Katherine Pape Urso,
(Make-up Artist for the play).

Registration For New Term Begins

Next semester's registration began yesterday and will continue until February 1. It will be again held on February 10. To avoid confusion, the office advises students to register during the former period. Complete instructions for registration follow:

- Make out a tentative program. Programs are posted in the foyer of the Main Building.
- Fill in registration card and in return receive class enrollment card and bill for tuition and fees from the Registrar's Office.

case dripped milk. It happened on the "L", coming down-town.

The annual basketball tournament is once again in full swing. The first game has been played and the seniors showed their superiority by beating the juniors 20-16. The hard fought for prize is the famous "Lead Pipe Trophy."

Here's one about that fresh air fiend REIM. One day in a steel class Joe started to open some windows to get some air, but he never got around to it because the other boys put him out and locked the doors. Joe got the "air", but nearly froze in the attempt.

We'd like to know why there was such great secrecy about the outcome of the archeo judgment for an "Assyrian Temple." It was only after much persuasion that we learned that Irv Addis and Roy Samuels each received a mention. Only two archeos were turned in.

Don't forget! The Charette is February 7. Get your bids now! A little publicity will not hurt. It's really going to be a swell dance. See you there!

The Slipstick

Cleave to the slipstick; let the slapstick fly where it may.

Well boys, it's time to sharpen up on long range vision or get your "specs" refitted because . . .

The final will be rough and dreary,
And its end far out of sight;
Foot it bravely—strong or weary;
Trust in luck, or do it right.

"Your husband looks like a brilliant man. I suppose he knows a lot?"
"Don't fool yourself. He doesn't suspect a thing."

Air Pilot: "Have you heard the remark: See Naples and Die?"

Passenger: "Yes!"

Polit: "Well, we are over Naples and the engine is not functioning."

—Lustige Krehner Zesting, Cologne.

Agitated Wife: "I'm positive that was a human being that we just ran over."

Motorist (in thick fog): "Good, then we're still on the road."

She: "I guess you played around with all the French girls while you were in Paris."

He: "No, not all of them. I was only there for two weeks."

Daughter: "Why does the bride dress in white?"

Mother: "Because she is happy."

Daughter: "Why does the bridegroom dress in black?"

Mother (looking at father): "Keep quiet, don't ask so many questions."

SAME DIFFERENCE

He: "Why does a woman say she's been shopping when she hasn't bought a thing?"

She: "Why does a man say he's been fishing when he hasn't caught a thing?"

Affable Clergyman (to little boy wearing half-socks): "Who's got nice, round, chubby legs?"

Little boy: "Mummy!"

A young doctor, trying to be a little sobby while addressing a mother's meeting said: "In all the world there's nothing so sweet as the smile on the face of an upturned child."

Conductor: "Can't you see the sign 'No Smoking'?"

Sailor: "Sure, mate, that's plain enough. But they are so many dippy signs here. One says, 'Wear Nemo Corsets.' So I ain't paying attention to any of 'em!"

We know that in Prince Albert we've got the quality—the taste and aroma—the top-of-the-morning flavor that collegemen are looking for. Men who have tried Prince Albert are satisfied with no other brand. So now we ask that you, too, try Prince Albert. Test Prince Albert under our positive you-must-be-pleased guarantee. Note the special "crimp cut." That makes P. A. burn slower and give a cooler smoke. Note the mildness and absence of harshness. That's because of the famous P. A. "anti-bite" process that is always used in the manufacture of Prince Albert. Prince Albert is packed right—in tin. The big red economy tin contains around 50 pipefuls of choice tobacco.
