Open Access Week discussion
Galvin Library
12:45 p.m. - 1:45 p.m., Galvin Library
In honor of Open Access Week, Galvin Library will be hosting a brown bag lunch discussion on author intellectual rights. The session will encourage lively discussion about open access, a growing trend in scholarly publishing and communication that challenges the traditional publication cycle by making research literature freely available to all readers without unnecessary licensing restrictions. This event is also an opportunity for faculty and students to ask questions and gain a clearer understanding of intellectual rights. Participants should bring your own lunch, and coffee, tea, and dessert will be provided.
