

ing one severely in the imagination. The stone-cutter, having been paid in advance, disappeared completely and the gang adjourned to a place where they smashed the midnight closing ordinance into little bits of pieces.

Since then, Radic activities have been of a more quiet order. The original thirteen initiated thirteen new men from each year. Men leaving school may be replaced by the vote of the members of his class. There are now five classes, and about eighty-five total membership. There are three or four banquets each year, and each class meets at the homes of the different members, where they are regaled with smokes and weenies. The whole club is particularly strong on roast pig and rye bread. Every year a dance, the best of all Armour affairs, is given, and each alternate year an opera is produced. Last year it was the "Walking Delegate," pronounced by many who saw it to be the finest amateur production they had ever witnessed.

The organization is purely social. There are no fees and no dues, and the only obligation, an unwritten one, is that any school affair in which a

A. Kelkenney ✓
C. E. Kilgore ✓
W. Hewitt
L. W. Bangs
W. E. Schermerhorn ✓

G. Flanagan
W. F. Hebard ✓
C. U. Smith ✓
B. C. Hooper ✓
J. T. Walbridge ✓

A. Hayden
J. Hayden
H. R. Shepherd ✓
J. N. Nind, Jr. ✓