

Love Sonnets

The river's very dry,
At St. Louis;
But sometimes it flows right by,
Dear St. Louis;
Its banks are very musty,
Its surface very crusty,
And it's always very dusty,
At St. Louis.

The grass is very green,
In Chicago;
And the streets are very clean,
In Chicago;
That's where to have the fun,
That's where to spend the mon,
That's where you're always done,
In Chicago.

All intoxicants are barred,
In Evanston;
Which is very, very hard,
On Evanston;
If you want to get a drink,
Don't stop too long to think;
Give the druggist clerk the wink,
In Evanston.

The girls are very fair,
In Ann Arbor;
They are also very rare,
In Ann Arbor;
They turn in at the toes,
And they turn up at the nose,
They wear parti-colored hose,
In Ann Arbor.

The men are very round,
In Milwaukee;
And they walk close to the ground,
In Milwaukee;
They eat limburger cheese,
And when they bend their knees,
They do it by degrees,
In Milwaukee.
