

the Freshmen was really a farce. There was some pretty good rough-housing, but at no time were the Freshmen in danger. Indeed they were just about to shove the Sophs through the fence, when the senior participants called the rush a "tie."

The Class of 1911 has not only won fame as a result of its strength, but in many other ways. The class was organized and running smoothly within two weeks after matriculation. Class-meetings are always well attended, and business has been carried on with dispatch. There has been money in the treasury at all times since the fourth day of the first semester. The class as a body has always been prominent in all social and athletic affairs. Two theater parties have been given by the class, both of which were well attended by Freshmen and upper classmen. Last of all, the Freshman dance on April 24 was one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the year, as well as a profitable financial undertaking. In the coming spring we hope to see a number of our athletes on the track and baseball teams, and are certain that they will do their full share in getting victories for the Tech.

The chronicle of the Freshman class must necessarily be more of a prophecy than a history, for we have as yet been organized for but six months. The class has, however, demonstrated its manly energy and earnestness in its cheerful compliance with all the requirements of the Institute and its faculty, and by its cheerful attention to duty, deserves commendation from everyone.

We may, therefore, in view of the many noble qualities of mind and heart possessed by the class as a whole, and by each member as an individual, prophesy a career unprecedented as students and as engineers in the years to come.
