

Coach Smart

The baseball team in the spring of 1907 was probably the strongest one that the College has ever had. Carr, Strube, and Harrington, who had graduated the spring before, and Howard, '09, were the only members of the team of 1906 who did not report for the tryout in March, and their places were well filled by Ahern, Deveny, and Lemmon, '09, Jens, '10, and Matthews, '07. This squad of 12 men started in on practice as early as they could, and kept together as a team until the last game had been played.
