

The General Manager of Athletics

Armour won nine games, and was defeated but three times—by the teams of the universities of Chicago, Michigan, and Minnesota, and then by scores which were not in the least discreditable. The Chicago game was played before either team had had much practice, and every man on the tech squad was given a chance to try his hand.

At the Michigan game there was one of the largest crowds that has ever been on Ogden Field. On the whole, Trinkhaus out-pitched the Michigan twirler, allowing but six hits and striking out ten men. The six hits, however, were so well bunched as to bring in four Wolverines in one inning.
