Muñoz, Guthier, Wamsley and Cravin. The bull-pen was occupied by Juice Jens, Ginger, Peerless and 'Aye' Arvey Jones.

After having acquainted the reader with the camp and the cliff-dwellers, we will set forth the most important occurrences in the following diary:

June 17. Bristol is sick from Peerless tobacco. When Jones is around "Pa" quickly fills his pipe inside his coat.

June 19. Big lumber drive of Menomine River Drive Co. comes through the dams; 80,000,000 feet of timber, and a collection of Hiawathas, Canucks, Micks, Svenskas, etc., though happily no Geeks, pass by.

June 24. "Poverty Row" glee club concert. Solos by Messrs. Williams and O. Kellner.

June 26. Dance at Kremlin. Three Faithorn Junction girls and thirteen Armour fellows attend.

June 27. Powell and Binder have the nightmare.

BRIDGE NEAR CAMP SITE

June 28. Victory Cole is din-a-mited. There's a red light on the track, etc. The mysterious night-riders are called dogs, skunks and other elephants, besides being threatened with being whipped individually and collectively. Bill Williams proposes a novel scheme to determine the guilty party, which is overheard by "Pa."

July 4. A sane Fourth is "pulled off." Some fellows go to Iron Mountain, some remain at camp, but the majority go to Pembine, where the Armour boys engaged in a baseball game with Pembine. Armour wins, 7 to 2.

July 6. Mrs. Phillips and children arrive. Osmeña publicly does not believe a mile square equals a square mile; privately he does.

July 7. Mutton for dinner—Hurray, Hurrah, Hurroo for that!

July 8. Chicko de Geek invents a curve that crosses the tangent three times. He is willing to bet three dollars he is right.

July 9. M. Osmeña walks out to work in sweater; on finding sun too hot for comfort, he walks back to the village and puts on a shirt. He is ready for work at 10 a. m.; early for him.

July 10. Cole says that distance swimmers do not dive. The ridge pole in Cole's tent is repaired, when consulting engineers on job think bending moment at center is too great.
