Sol Sackheim

Electrical Engineering.

Prepared at Medill High School.

A. I. E. E.

The Electrical Department boasts of the most diminutive of all the graduates in Sol Sackheim. Who does not know Sackheim, of Perry's Power Plant fame? What would we do without little Circus Solly?

You would not believe it possible that this mite of humanity was not a native of this proud city since the beginning, but he is not. He commenced his existence in the far-off Moscow, Russia, on Nov. 20, 1887. A good wind blew him to more pleasant shores five years later. Since then "Sacky" has been loyal to his adopted home, Chicago.

Medill High School furnished Sackheim with the knowledge of those essentials which the Deans demand of those aspiring to become students of the Institute over whose destinies they preside. Armour has seen more or less of this luminary for the last five years or so, "Solly" working a half a year outside the school.

If there is one thing which Sackheim delights in more than any other it is an argument. Messrs. Marsh, Perry, Barrows, and other Faculty representatives can testify to this without perjuring their immortal souls. However, be it said to his credit, Sol has restrained his natural proclivities in this direction, and throughout his Senior year he has studied diligently. The Senior Electrical curriculum as well as the tests of different wattmeters, of which Goldberg and he are performing a great number for thesis purposes, have served to fill his time profitably.
