

ATHLETICS

JOHN M. EMSLIE

"Dink," as he is known to the followers of athletics at Armour, won his emblem in his sophomore year. He is one of the best basketball players in the Institute, but owing to his studies, and to other outside work—he plays with Auburn Park—he was unable to continue as right forward for the Tech basketball team. When John was in the game, he never shirked his position, and always played a fast and clever game. He is noted for his accurate basket shooting, and is a fighter from the ground up. Emslie has also supported his class athletics up to the very limit. He has played baseball and basketball with his class team every year, and was always there in a pinch.

WILLIAM H. HALLSTEIN

"Dutch" is a victim of Armour athletics. It all happened during the first year he was in our midst. In that year, when the call was issued for basketball candidates, William H. was one of the quickest to report, and had little trouble in making one of the guard positions his own private property. It was while in this capacity, that Hallstein injured his knee so badly that he has been unable to take part in any of our regular basketball games. Since then, however, "Dutch" has taken part in class basketball, class baseball and class track. He won his second "A" as a star track man last year, and due to his good work, was elected captain for 1914.

We can say this for Hallstein, that he is a clean, honest and earnest worker in school as well as in athletics. Ask Dean Monin about the expense report he submitted while he was student manager of the baseball team.

ALLAN W. BARR

With the return of Track to the realms of Armour athletics, came the appearance of our star high-jumper, being none other than the slim, agile and speedy A. W. Barr. Barr starred for the Tech. in all their meets, usually copping first prize whenever he entered. He took first place at the Little Five Conference Meet at Lake Forest last year, and was forced to break a Conference record to do it. He has been a good supporter of his class athletics, and could always be counted on to win.

He is a fine fellow, and is appreciated by the fair sex, as is shown by his recent entrance into the ranks of the benedicts.
