

Football

Below we show the Football Germ (Lat., Germanibus Footballis), formerly prevalent at Armour, but now almost extinct. The sole survivor, which is kept under lock and key in the President's office, is gradually pining away from lack of food and friends. One peculiarity of the germ is that it cannot be killed entirely, but will linger on for years in confinement. However, if once permitted to escape the strict guard placed upon it, it will multiply with exceeding rapidity and spread throughout the school in a brief period, as the students are peculiarly susceptible to contagion by the germ.
