

JOHN J. PLOCAR

Born Sept. 21, 1900, Chicago, Ill.

Carter H. Harrison High School.

"A Proposed Design of the New Hydraulic Laboratory for the Greater A. I. T."

A. S. M. E.; Varsity Baseball, 1920-21.

Johnny, the jovial, big-hearted, and somewhat boisterous athlete, is one of the most active of the Senior Mechs. If there is action anywhere on the campus or in the classrooms, one may be sure to find him present.

Johnny has the other than athletic proclivities too. Being "vurra" handsome and of stalwart build, he is most popular with the fairer sex. This ability to mix, combined with his perseverance and clear head are sure to advance him later.

FRANK D. QUINLAN

Born April 3, 1899, Chicago, Ill.

Crane Technical High School.

"Performance of a Chain Grate Harrington Stoker."

Ω. Λ.; A. S. M. E.

"Quin" is one of the best liked fellows in the class. Everyone in school knows him as he is in on everything that goes on around here. There certainly is no doubt about Quin's grit and determination. He has not only carried his school work well, but he has also held down eight hours of work every night during his four years here. It has kept him on the go to do it, but he has accomplished what he went after and has managed to find a lot of fun on the way. Quin has been too busy to have any hobbies, but he has developed a determination that will take him a long way.
