

WILLIAM C. SPONHOLZ

Born January 30, 1898.

Lane Technical High School.

"A Great Non-Orthodox Synagogue."

A. A. S.

"Bill" always delivered the punch. He had the "Heidelberg" method of study and loved to misinterpret the profs.' remarks, but judging his work we know that he did not follow out his misinterpretations. We all like "Bill" for his dauntless dislike for all that is sham and show. 'Spon' is a true architect, without any external earmarks of one. On entering the senior drafting room one will always know that 'Bill' is there, by his hearty greeting.

MARYAN F. WINIARSKI

Born Nov. 20, 1894, Krakow, Poland.
Lane Technical High School.

"A Great Non-Orthodox Synagogue."

A. A. S.

"Winnie" is always the quiet, composed person that he appears to be at the first impression. Being a "left over" to use the term, because of his services in the war, 'Winnie' is a bit older than most of his classmates in years as well as experiences. His outstanding characteristic is his unselfish attitude in helping everyone that needs help, whether that person asks for it or not.

You will often see him on Saturday noons (as is his habit), smoking a cigar in front of the Art Institute, which is supposedly a tonic for the afternoon work.

