

The last barrier in our path occurred in the home stretch. It was the printers' strike which lasted nearly one week. It is unnecessary to say more about that because the public news organs covered it completely. We are sorry for the late appearance of the book and have tried to atone for the tardiness by improving on the quality of the book. But as you see, the hindrances were beyond our control.

Because a college annual is very often the only tangible means of recalling to the mind of the graduate the days he has spent in college, the Cycle Staff has moulded this book after a fashion that they believed would best enable the graduate to live over again "those good old college days." To bring about this desired result we have left nothing undone. We have endeavored to depict all the different phases of a college student's life here at Armour Institute. The activities of the students are represented by both words and pictures. As a record it covers the events of the school year 1920-1921 completely.

In conclusion I would like to thank all those who helped make this volume what it is. Especially do I want to thank the other members of the staff who were always willing to help and without whose unreserved assistance the book would have been a failure.
