

BANQUETS

JUNIOR BANQUET

CLASS OF 1922.

The one big get-together party given exclusively for the Juniors and a few of their guests was held at the Aviation Club on March 5, 1921. It was our first class banquet and gave promise of many yearly cheerful reunions in the years to come. The cuisine was wonderful, a full course affair, consisting of good food and plenty of it.

As guests, the class had invited members of the faculty and alumni. Among the alumni with us for the evening was "Shorty" Maguire who always adds to such occasions with his stories. He gave a very learned talk on nothing in general for which we were very thankful. Like Maguire, the other speakers called upon were aware that the Aviation Club's rooms were not classrooms and we were not subjected to any of those long sleep-producing after dinner talks. Needless to say that excellent entertainment was derived from the speeches and what followed them. The Jazz band and a representation of the Glee Club were on hand to help over the rough and dry spots with some Caruso and Beethoven.

The merry makers took advantage of every minute and would have failed to crowd more real good wholesome fun into six months than they had that memorable night. Indeed most of us are looking forward to the first reunion and only hope that there will be reunions of the class of 1922 every year.
