

LIQUOR JOKES—The only kind that have spirit in them.

MORE HOME HINTS.

To Stop Cooking Odors—Apply coat of rubber to stove.

To Remove Grass Stains From White Dress—Wear a green dress hereafter.

A DITTY ENTITLED:

The only rings I ever gave her were the rings beneath her eyes.

Here's to the happiest days of my life,
Spent in the arms of another man's wife—My Mother.

GOLLY!

There was a young maiden named
Polly,
Who tried to catch up with a trolley.
Her skirt was too tight,
And not being light,
She sat down rather hard on her folly.

There's many a good thing lost by not asking for it—think it over.

It takes guts to start up a musical string factory.

FIRE PROTEC STUFF.

Prof. F.: "Late again, Geisler."

Geisler: "So am I."

Jokes, essays, and sermons should be like a woman's dress—short enough to keep up the interest but long enough to cover the subject. In other words, brevity is the soul of wit and the sole charm of a maiden's skirt.

Little says that a woman's first kiss might be laid to curiosity, and the second to misplaced confidence, but all the rest are just pure carelessness.

Prof. F.: "Mr. Bradley, name three articles containing starch."

Bradley: "Two cuffs and a collar."
