

CLASSES

SAMUEL SILVERBERG

Russia, January 25, 1892.

Hoffman Prep School, Chicago.

Lane Tech High School and Junior College.

A. Ch. E. S.

If you have an ambition to some day dig around musty parchments for historical knowledge, first take a few courses with Silverberg in Hebrew. He is self-supporting and part of his income he gleans from teaching this difficult language. Being more mature in years than his classmates, Silverberg's judgment is often sought. Ask him how to make soap. Professor McCormack still cherishes a few samples of a product that was made by Silverberg.

ELI SLOBOD

Russia, December 16, 1900.

Chemical Engineering.

Carl Shurz High School.

A. Ch. E. S.

Slobod is "Noah's" only rival for the honors of philosophy. When one gets into a controversy with Eli there is no end of "ologies" quoted and one is completely swamped. Eli is an efficient and hard worker. If his viewpoint on some things of life is a trifle cynical we will forgive him as that is a privilege of a philosopher.
