The Federal Board for vocational education was formed by the United States government to supervise and direct the rehabilitation of the disabled veterans of the World War. The trainees, as these students are termed, are divided into two classes: one class being those men who received more than ten per cent disability from injuries incurred in the line of duty, and are now receiving their tuition, supplies, and a fair maintenance allowance; the other class being those men who did not receive ten per cent disability and are now receiving tuition and disability compensation.

On March 13, 1922, these students formed an organization known as the Gun and Blade Club, for the purpose of closer relationship between each other and their school activities.

The club meets each month for its regular business meeting under the supervision of the National Federal Board Gun and Blade Club.

An interesting year is planned and many social events are to take place.
