

To the Members of the Senior Class.

I congratulate the Seniors on their good fortune to live in this marvelous age of engineering and scientific accomplishments.

It is my hope that wherever they may be located in the future they will show the same energy, earnestness, and loyalty that they have for the last four years, and if to these admirable qualities they may add foresight, breadth of vision, and the application of the "Golden Rule," their success is assured.

I wish each member of this class an honorable and prosperous career and the fulfillment of every cherished ambition.

Howard M. Raymond.
