I am mighty glad to see that my talk to you about the Senior Dance did some good. I saw you at the Opera Club last Friday the twenty-first of November. Who in the Junior Class was able to sell you a ticket? Well, now give me an honest answer. Did you enjoy yourself?

(Here my friend went off into a trance and made me late to my next class. He lauded the Opera Club to the heavens, as an ideal place for any school dance. He took special delight in enumerating and rating each man in the Seven Spiders. Some of the terms he used in this last are undefinable in the President's American but are well known to every college man. Then he asked me, much to my delight, when the next dance was "coming off.")

I laughed to myself and agreed with him heartily.
