"Where were you last Friday night?" my friend queried, when I tried to miss him on the morning of December 15th. Here I was caught, I had roasted him so about not attending the Senior Dance, that he took great delight in capturing me and putting me through the same tricks.

"Don't you know that the Sophomore Class ran a dance last Friday at the Drake Hotel? I'll bet you couldn't guess who furnished the music."

"No. It was Les' Castle and his Serenaders, now aren't you sorry you did not go?"

I had to acknowledge that I was in the wrong and I hated to face Professor Tibbals, for it seemed to me that he might notice that I was not there and would ask me the same questions. But then I vowed not to miss another under any circumstances.
