

SUMMER CAMP

Armour Tech Summer Surveying Camp Club

1924 Season

Officers

Charles W. Lang.....	President
Robert C. Peacock.....	Vice-President
Louis W. Chatroop, Jr.....	Treasurer
Anthony F. Algiers.....	Secretary

Members

Professor Melville B. Wells	R. Leslie Lawson
Professor Roe L. Stevens	Richard E. Ostland
Anthony F. Algiers	Robert W. Packard
Benjamin Z. Cailles	Robert C. Peacock
Francis J. Carlin	Ralph W. Peterson
Frank Caruso	Willard C. Rykert
Walter T. Collins	Leonard K. Sairs
Louis W. Chatroop, Jr.	Saul Samuels
Frank A. Danda	Dave Silverman
Earl DeBourge	Alexander J. Slattala
Julius B. Eisenberg	George N. Sleight
Otto H. Gabbert	George F. Uebele
Paul A. Graf	Harry C. Ure
James D. Green	Norman Usler
John C. Harrower	Victorio Verano
C. L. Herrick	Henry M. Zukowski
Leslie F. Johnson	Venceslaus J. Zukowski
Charles W. Lang	John R. Zwiers

The adventures of the Freshmen "Civils" on their way to camp started off with a bang just as soon as they were tucked into the chartered coach at the Union Station. For some reason or other, or no reason at all, Cailles and the porter lunged into a heated argument and it was only with much effort that the two could be induced to quiet down. This lad Cailles is such a pugilistic fellow.

Upon the arrival at New Lisbon, the party changed cars. Slowly it crept over the group that there was no longer that thunderous voice identified with a lad named Peterson. He was gone. Searching parties revealed his presence with three native maidens. His stay with these made his departure hasty and he sprained his ankle in the effort to continue on his way to camp.

One Hundred Forty-two