

ENGINEERING SOCIETIES

W. S. E.

The course pursued by the Western Society of Engineers through the past year has been one which was planned by the Board of Management at the opening of its term of office. Feeling that the spirit of cooperation in all the activities of the Society was necessary for a successful year, the assistance of all the members was requested.

As a result, men from the four classes volunteered their services in the drive for increased membership. Men of artistic tastes and abilities offered to make notices which, by the way, we consider to have been the most attractive posted. Much valuable aid was given by men in the interest of our smokers. All in all, the officers and members feel that the harmonious relations existing have resulted in a most prosperous year.

The program of the Society is essentially that of having prominent engineers address the members at regular meetings. Twelve such meetings were arranged, and valuable information and ideas have been brought to the members. Along with these pleasant gatherings, our social program has contained one or two very enjoyable smokers. Under the direction of Mr. Chatroop a smoker was held at the Triangle which was acclaimed by all to be a real success. Mr. DeBourge sang some delightful songs and a trio, composed of Messrs. V. J. Zukowski, H. M. Zukowski, and W. E. Vevurka, rendered several operatic selections. Beside this entertainment, a play, "What-not," was presented. We wish to state that the "Armour Stock Company" is to be complimented upon the originality and entertainment which it offered in its first production.

With the year drawing to a close, the Society feels that mistakes have been made and that opportunities have been overlooked; but those carrying on may profit by them and by doing so, develop this growing organization.
