

SOCIAL FRATERNITIES

Sigma Kappa Delta

The Sigma Kappa Delta Fraternity was founded September 20, 1912, and it is the fourth oldest fraternity at Armour. The prime motive of the organization was to give less attention to social life and devote itself more earnestly to school activities and scholarship. This idea has been carefully preserved, though it has not been allowed to suppress the observation of such social duties as every fraternity naturally incurs.

Sigma Kappa Delta is composed of men from every class, every department and from very nearly every student activity of the school. These activities included class organizations, engineering societies, publications, musical clubs, Y. M. C. A., athletics, honorary fraternities and Junior Week activities. They are all entirely independent of our actual studies and represent that side of our lives which is, in a way, really the most important one of all. In addition to our class standing it is our participation in these things and the way in which we enter into them, that shows our full worth as a fraternity to the school.

In the field of athletics Sigma Kappa Delta has held her own and has a record of contributing as many athletes as any other fraternity. At the present time members hold seven of the fourteen school track records. In the six times that the Inter-Fraternity Relay has been a feature of Circus Day we have had the honor of winning five consecutive times; setting a relay record equal to that of the school.

Taken all in all, the Sigma Kaps are proud of what they have accomplished since their organization, and are intent on doing as well in the future. Dante's hellish statement, "Nothing to look backward to with pride, nothing to look forward to with hope," will never apply to any man who has attended Armour Tech under the guiding hand of Sigma Kappa Delta.
