

SOCIAL FRATERNITIES

Armour Chapter of Triangle

The organization which is now known as the "Armour Chapter" of Triangle was formally organized October 12, 1921, by six active students, juniors and seniors of the Armour Institute of Technology. The men were: C. W. Carlson '23, George Goedhart '23, Robert S. Mayo '23, Benjamin F. Morrison '22, Harold W. Monday '23, and L. T. Smith '23. These men felt that the ideals of fellowship which they sought could be more perfectly realized and congeniality and genuine friendship made more essential by forming a local fraternity. At the time of its organization the name given this society was "Scroll and Triangle." Considerable time was spent by its founders in studying the conditions at the Armour Institute of Technology and the fraternities in general so that "Scroll and Triangle" would be established as a successful fraternity. By January of the year 1922 much progress had been made and seven more students from the junior and senior classes were taken into the organization and a formal petition for recognition as a local fraternity was prepared for the executive council of the Armour Institute of Technology. This petition was accepted and the Scroll and Triangle established itself upon the campus as a local fraternity in February, 1922.

In the latter part of 1922, the Scroll and Triangle local fraternity petitioned Triangle, a national fraternity of engineers, for a chapter at the Armour Institute of Technology. In May of 1923 at the fourteenth annual convention of Triangle, the petition was accepted and on May 26, 1923, the Scroll and Triangle local fraternity was installed as the Armour Chapter of Triangle.

Greenfield, Halama
Hanson, Flenner, Hammer

Willis, Bacot, Keating, Hoff, Harrower, Chatrop, McDowell, Quinby
Zwiers, Polk, Chandler, Fearing, Dufour, Petters, Krieger, Allaire

Streeter, Reutter
Gambell, Atwood, Langan

One Hundred Seventy-nine