

HONORARY FRATERNITIES

Sphinx

Sphinx, in a manner true to its name, has quietly and in an impressive way accomplished several things in the past year that have materially affected great changes in the publications.

First, an entirely new system of staff management has been adopted for the Cycle. Under the old system new staffs were elected every year and those who had any knowledge of the work were through just when their knowledge had been acquired. With the new system the men are gradually promoted to the major positions and by the time they hold these positions they are fully capable.

Second, the Press Club has been put firmly on its feet and now holds an undeniable position in the life of the Institute. It has been a constant aid to the publications and during the future will be an even greater factor in the growth of the publications at Armour.

Third, a system similar to that used on the Cycle is now being formulated for the Armour Engineer and will probably do as much to forward that publication.

The members of Sphinx are men who have toiled on the publications and cannot rest until they have helped to further the publications in some manner.
