

several small laboratories housing specific branches of engineering have been built and are now in use. During the time the engineering school has been prospering—