SENIOR INFORMAL

What a thrill, especially for those with the knowledge that they are on the last lap of their college race, attends the first informal dance of the year.

We throw out our chests and clasp her arm tighter as we enter that favorite of Armour men, the Palmer House, and hear the announcer holding forth thus: "Express elevators for the Red Lacquer Room, Armour Institute of Technology!"

It seems that thrills are everywhere tonight, the 6th of December, in the heart, in the feet, and by one's side, as Waddy Wadsworth begins to smile and wave his magic wand.

And then, as the grind of school-work is forgotten, and only the sunny side remains, we enjoy ourselves to the utmost, and as the end of the evening draws on, we say: "What a Class! What a Girl! Waddy Band!"
