

A MESSAGE FROM DOCTOR RAYMOND

"With announcement in February last of the new development plan, Armour Institute of Technology embraced a philosophy of usefulness which cannot but guide the Institute to a promising and splendid future. In its reception, and in the early phases of its operation, the plan gives guaranty of its ultimate success. Its greatest achievement, however, will not lie in the material support or position of prestige which Armour will gain from it, but rather in the number of men, of this and succeeding generations whom it will help to a more mature understanding and use of their abilities."

HOWARD M. RAYMOND.
