

■
a thrill, whether one's own experience, or a sensation stirred by witnessing an act of another is usually easy to remember, but memory does not record as completely and accurately as does a picture.