

We, the staff of the "Cycle of 1936," give to you this book, the living chronicle of this year just past. Many pictorial memories were garnered by busy cameras. The outstanding social and athletic events have been here recorded. Personalities have been captured and incidents recounted. To the Seniors this record of the climax of their four years' endeavor is dear, for it invokes pictures of friends, of classroom activities, and of extra-curricular pleasures. As they go out into life they take it with them as a concrete symbol of their college careers. To you who are left behind we hope it will live as the story of an eventful year. To you who have gone before we hope it will revive memories of college life . . . pictures of friends . . . of school activities . . . of intramural rivalries. To you all . . . we present . . . THE CYCLE OF 1936.

FOREWORD