

SOPHOMORES

for themselves in their freshman year. The interclass athletics are started off each year by the basketball games. This title was taken by the class in the year before and was defended successfully this year. They defeated the freshman team in the first encounter and beat the upperclassmen by an overwhelming score in the final match. As defending champions in the track meet, they again came through and won. Aside from this, many of the members have shown superior prowess in the field of varsity sports.

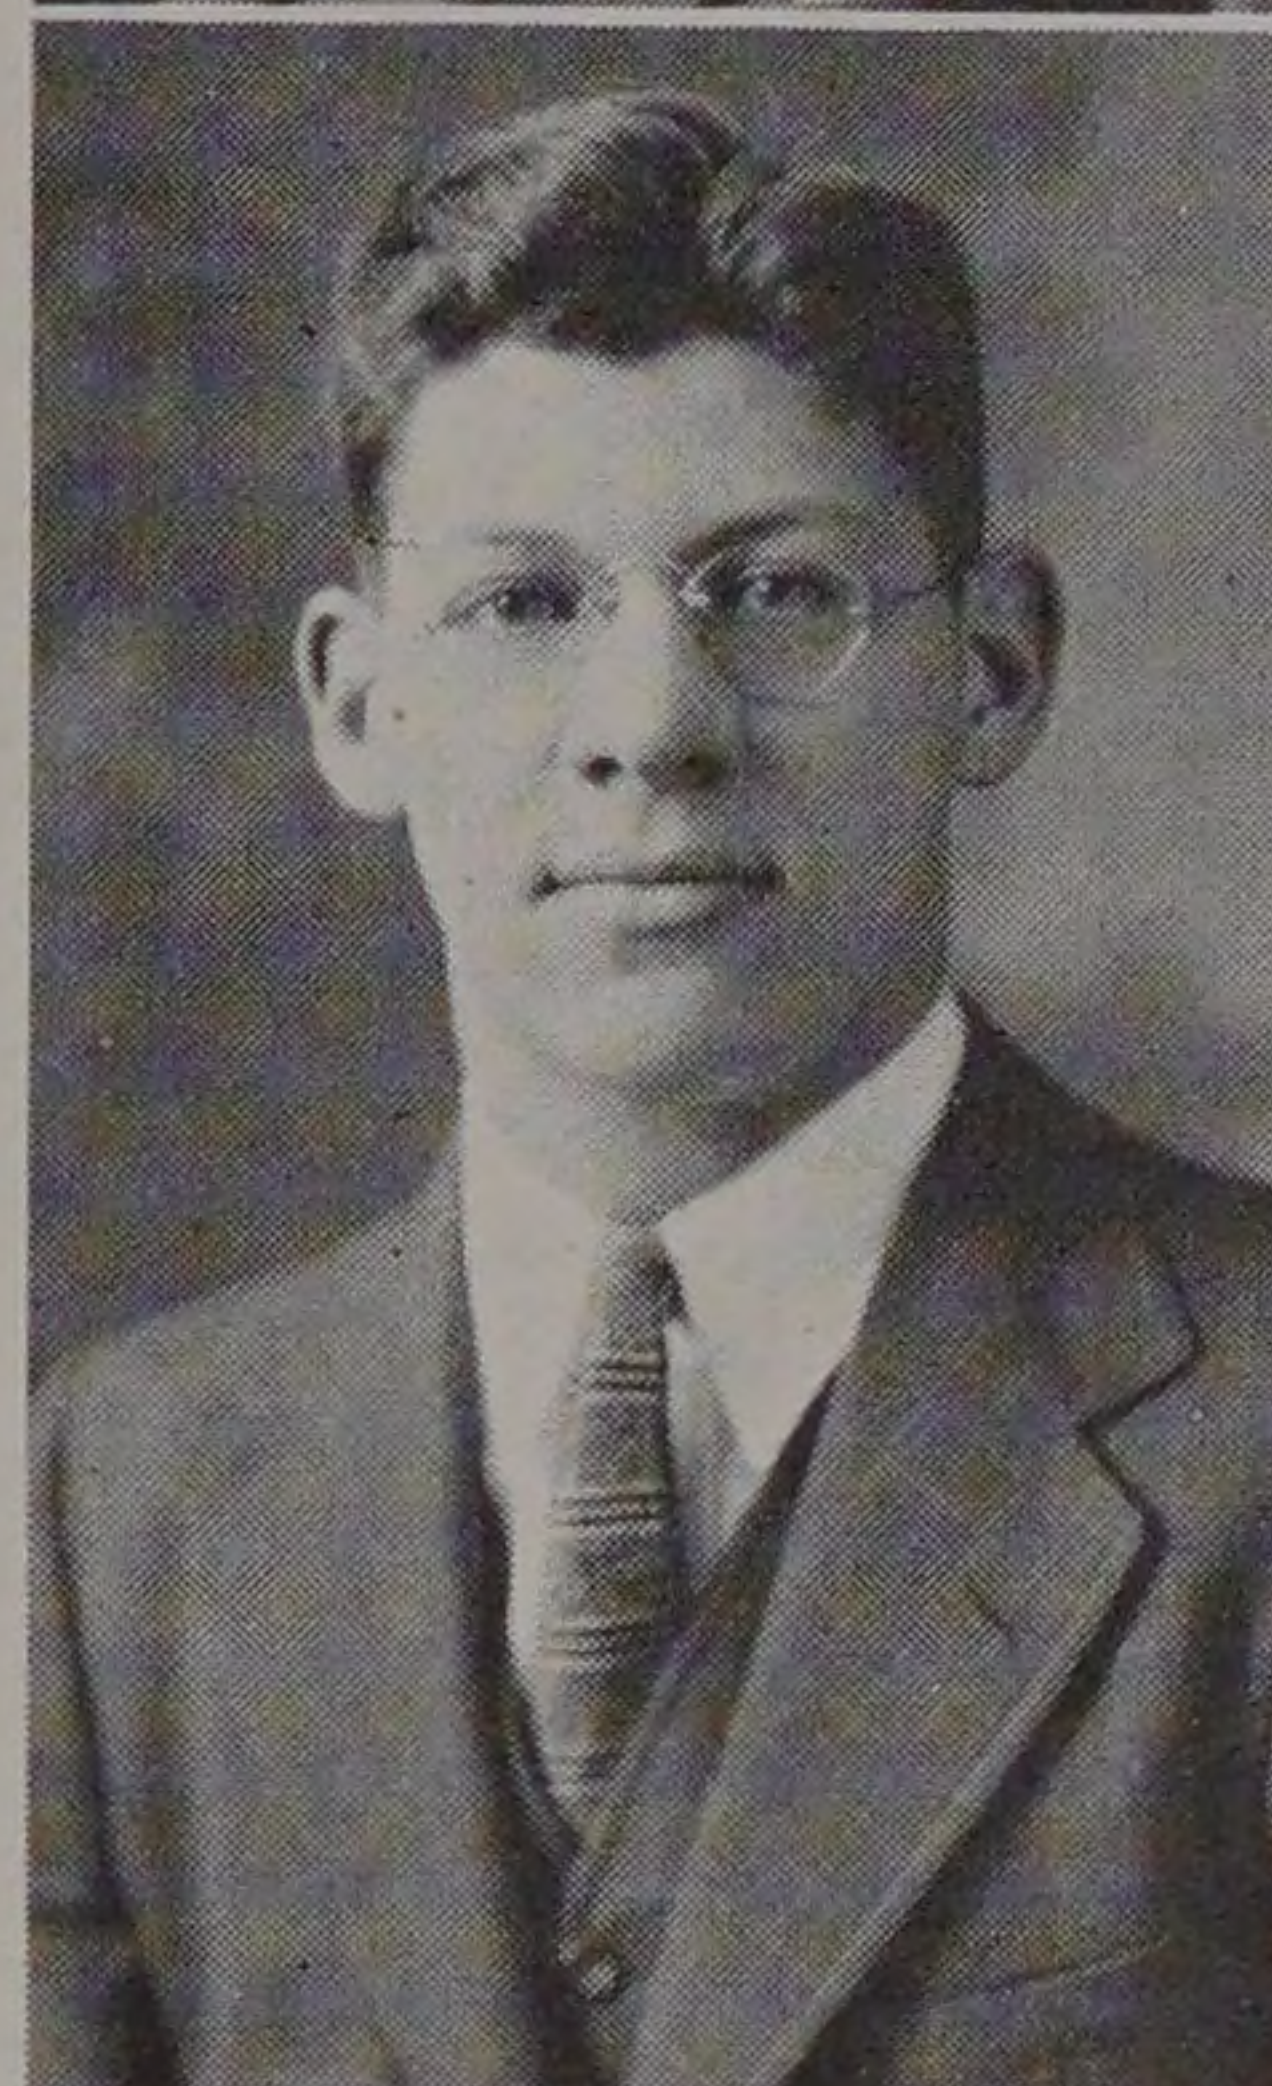

During the first semester, the social activities of the class were at a standstill due to the overwhelming number of activities sponsored by clubs and the other classes. With the coming of the new semester, however, things began to move and the first dance of the year was held on March 13. The beautiful Lake Shore Athletic Club, coupled with the scintillating music of Johnny Woodward and his orchestra, furnished a delightful atmosphere for complete enjoyment. A second dance, held in late spring, was a thing of beauty and will live forever in the memories of those who attended it.

With the coming of spring and St. Patrick's Day, open season was again declared on the frosh. This time, however, the sophomores worked toward a definite goal and with a definite purpose. With "Junior Week" and the "Class Rush" looming ahead, the main purpose of the drive was to wear down the freshmen and put them in the proper condition for the all-important event. Organization was better than in the previous year, and plans were laid early. As a consequence, the results were far better than in the previous year.

Now as we are nearing the middle of our college course and upperclassmanship, we can look both backward and forward. Backward to the fun, work, and comradeship that we have enjoyed in our stay at Armour up until this time, and forward to specialized engineering and the end of our college career.

The Boys In The Radio Club
At Work

Howard G. Downing, Jr.
Secretary

Melvin Schuman
Treasurer

Stanley E. Healy, Jr.
Social Chairman