

Hebenstreit

Wagner

Shukes

Dreis

basket. Merz dropped the ball through the hoop to give the Black and Yellow the winning points. The entire game was clean, fast and scrappy, providing ample entertainment for the few spectators who had somehow found their way into the Armory.

On January 11 the Armour team traveled out to George Williams' home floor, where they repeated their former success, this time by a score of 43-36. During the first half, the Techawks got through their opponents' defense eleven times, scoring eleven field goals, putting them ahead, 28-13, at the end of the half. During the second half Armour merely coasted along, allowing a somewhat revived George Williams' team to score 23 points to their 13. Heike capitalized on the opponents' fouls, sinking eleven of the thirteen free throws offered him.

On January 16, the Armour quintet paid their respects to Wheaton and came home with the smaller end of of a 41-31 score. Wheaton's small gym hampered Armour's style, and there was much poor shooting as a result. O'Brien, who had a torn ligament, was missed greatly.

January 18 found the Techawks at Lake Forest, receiving a 36-24 defeat. The Lake Forest five was just too good for our boys, proving it with a number of sparkling long shots and some tight guarding. They were leading, 16-12, at the half. Armour attempted a rally in the second half, but Lake Forest promptly squelched it, and then proceeded to make some more baskets, just to make sure of the game.

In front of the empty galleries at the Armory, Armour defeated Michigan State Normal, 26-21. The game started with close see-saw play. Then Warner called time out. The Techawks

Merz Sinks One for Armour

Get It Off the Backboard

