On May 7, a triangular meet was held at the Loyola track between Armour, Loyola, and Milwaukee State Teacher's College. Armour was set back by both of the other teams. The affair with Loyola was closely fought, with Loyola emerging victorious by the slim margin of two points, 63-61. Roberts accounted for 19 of the Armour total, Neal for 13, and Faust gained 10 points with two firsts in the distance events. It was the relay which was the deciding factor, however, and it was due to their victory in it that Loyola won. On the other hand, the fleet-footed gentlemen from Milwaukee definitely outclassed both Armour and Loyola in the triangular meet, and had little trouble in running up a score of 98½ to 27½, giving Armour its worst defeat of the year. They took all the firsts except the 120-yard high hurdles, which was won by Captain Roberts, who also placed second in two events, and third in two others, scoring 13 points.

The last meet of the year was with Wheaton on May 10 at Ogden Field. This meet had a double significance. Besides being the last meet of the season it marked the last contest under the tutelage of Coach "Lonny" Stagg, who accepted an offer from an eastern school for an athletic directorship. To show him that his efforts had not been in vain, the team turned in a 71½ to 54½ point victory. Armour took seven firsts; Dunbar in the 100-yard dash, Neal in the 220-yard dash, Nelson in the half-mile, Captain Roberts in the low hurdles and the discus throw, Fleig in the high hurdles, and Thornton and Kulpak tied for first in the high jump. This completed the season which ended Coach Stagg's regime at Armour. However, next year should be a banner one, with Captain-elect Concolino, Neal, Faust, Dunbar, Fleig, Neuert, and Rosen back to form a nucleus for next year's team.
