Small boy—"I'm not afraid of going to the hospital, mother, I'll be brave and take my medicine, but I ain't going to let them palm off a baby on me like they did on you—I want a pup."

First Imbiber—"I found (hic) a half dollar."

Second Stew—"I'sh mine, it'sh got my name on it."

First Sot—"Whats'h your name?"

Second Stiff—"E. Pluribus Unum."

First—"Yea, it'sh yours."

The teacher suggested that the children should draw on a piece of paper what they would like to be when grown up. At the end of the period a little girl, age nine, handed in a blank sheet of paper. "Why, isn't there anything you'd like to be when you grow up?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, teacher, I'd like to get married, but I don't know how to draw it," replied the little girl.

Eager Frosh—"What makes a locomotive run?"

Clever M. E.—"Say, if you had hot coals in your pants, you'd run, too!"

Connect 20,000 volts across a pint. If the current jumps it, the whiskey is poor.

If the current causes a precipitation of lye, tin, arsenic, iron slag, and alum, the whiskey is fair.

If the liquor chases the current back to the generator, you've got good whiskey.

Sunday school teacher—"Why in your prayers do you only ask for your daily bread instead of asking for enough to last a week?"

Little Johnny—"So we can have it fresh every day."

As the doorman ran down to open the limousine door, he tripped and rolled down the last four steps.

"For heaven's sake, be careful," cried the club manager. "They'll think you're a member."
