

Top Row: Olsen, Harmon, Leskinen, Donoghue, Hass, Dolhun, Adams, Shapiro, Malela, Hartman, Hruda, Smith. Second Row: Olson, Brendle, Jones, Bullen, Smith, Lange, Johnson, Angsten, Matthews, Gaudio, Hausske. Third Row: Hoversen, Crego, Greenberg, Lesak, Penn, Ettinger, Jackel, Kolody, Emmons, Sorokin, Milliken, Proctor. Fourth Row: Heller, Sorensen, Crouse, Lewis, Yonker, Waber, Zimmerman, Borr, Fisher, Gorman, Gardes.

the Armour tradition—compelling all freshmen to wear green caps, many freshmen still appeared at school without their caps—and later their pants—on the day set aside for the initial wearing of the caps. Sophomores encountered little resistance in depriving these isolated freshmen of their treasured belongings. Many freshmen attempted to struggle but the overwhelming odds made any attempts to struggle futile. Daring members of the class who did fight only succeeded in providing amusement for the sophomores who howled with glee. Those that lost their pants suffered little humiliation in the company of the students who laughed at their plight, but considerable pride had to be swallowed when the pants were repossessed from the librarians and the girls in the Student Union. Rather than submit to further humiliation the class began to band together realizing that in union there was strength. Although there was little evidence of the plan working when it was first tried, it later became increasingly difficult for sophomores to "pants" freshmen without reinforcements of the class of '41 appearing to aid their stricken brother. In fact impending riots were broken only when Institute officials appeared. Even the "L" station which had been a favorite

Top Row: Dailey, Knief, Lightstone, Doane, Leave, Schaffer, Obergfell, McErlean, Smith, Grinndal, Sibik, Steinke. Second Row: Meyer, Gehle, Lindeman, Heiberg, Carlson, Saccomanno, Hillger, Dobrowolski, Warner, Ericson, Savon. Third Row: Muehlhausen, Martin, Mahn, Larson, Perkis, Young, Bauch, Molda, Vaupell, Kochale, Krueger. Fourth Row: Conners, Brodsky, Plengey, Schroeder, Ratzel, Kirkland, Flood, Schorow, Bixby, Houston, Mason, Tannehill.

