

Dunne

Techawk nine cinched its third victory while host to the North Central Cardinals. Dunne roused the stands to a cheer when he cracked one twenty feet past the white post on the centerfield fence for the first home run of the year. Kruse, who donated nine strikeouts to the cause, pitched exceptionally well in tight situations, weakening only momentarily in the ninth. Armour started the scoring in the second when Green lined one over to right field, scoring Shewchuk who had succeeded in reaching third. The Cardinals loaded the bags in the third at the cost of only one out, but were held to one run; a running catch by Logullo retiring them. The Shewchuk-Green combination again accounted for a run in the fourth for Armour. Pacocha had a nice hitting day, and made two of the five tallies, while Dunne's homer took care of the fifth. Naperville scored their two runs in the first of the ninth.

The second victory of the same week came to Armour as Pacocha yielded only five hits to the Elmhurst squad. In contrast to this Tech men saw the ball sufficiently well to hit eighteen times. Batting honors of the day were taken by Logullo, Kruse, and Gebel, each scoring a trio of hits and, what's more startling, an equal number of runs. Logullo scored in the first when Kruse hit safely into left. Pacocha retired the Elmhurst team by fielding two slow grounders and fanning the third batter. In the third inning, Pacocha walked and Gebel singled, and both of them streaked home on Logullo's hit. The first Elmhurst score came in the fourth, when three men hit, two of whom crossed home. Their third and final tally came in the fifth on Knicker's score. Following these minor rallies, the Techawks tightened up, and Elmhurst went hitless for the rest of the game. With bases loaded in the seventh Wagner smashed a single scoring Gebel and Logullo. Following suit, Kruse sent one to right that scored Dunne and Wagner. In the eighth two more runs were scored. Why go on? the final score was Armour—14, Elmhurst—3.

The N. I. Conference title was cinched when Armour took its fourth consecutive victory of the season from Wheaton, 7-4. Getting only eight hits off of Johnson, Wheaton's pitcher, the Techawks took advantage of every opening to bring in scores. Kruse's stellar pitching held his opponents to five hits, four of which came home. Logullo and Wagner scored in the first on a wild throw by Wheaton's catcher, but went scoreless in the second. Things looked black when Wheaton chalked up three in the third, to take an early game lead of 3-2. This was short-lived, for Tech came back with two more in their half. The Wheaton nine pulled in their last score when Ellis drove a triple in deep center and came home on Bath's single to right. With the aid of a trio of errors in the eighth the Armour nine brought the tally to its final score, seven runs. Shewchuk was safe on an error by Ellis, while Gebel singled over second, and Logullo singled on a bad throw to first. The final run scored when Green came around on Pacocha's sacrifice.

For the second time within a week the Techawk sluggers downed North Central on their opponent's field to the tune of 7-2. Captain Logullo started things off with a single to center. Wagner fanned, but Seidenberg walked, moving Logullo to second. Kruse, out to win his own ball game, poked a nice single over short to score Logullo, but Seidenberg got caught sleeping at third to end the inning. Pacocha and Wagner scored in the sixth when North Central's pitcher became excited and threw the ball into the stands. While North Central picked up a run on a walk and Stratton's triple, Armour picked up two more in the seventh on a pass to Logullo, a
