

The Bone-crushers

Manager Basile

Coach Weissman

Maxant and Tullgren won on falls. Nigrelli met a tough customer in the 155 pound division and lost his match by a fall.

Six days later North Central tried to do what Lawrence couldn't, but met with a similar fate before the Armour wrestlers, losing 24-10. Tech took six out of eight bouts on three falls and as many decisions. McDaniel and Till each pinned his man, the former in slightly over three minutes. Captain Dunne wrestled the full nine minutes, winning by the referee's nod. Hanna and Ropek lost in the middleweights, the latter fighting at a twenty pound disadvantage, and lasting almost the whole route. Maxant retaliated with a pin. Tullgren and Kazmierowicz won from Rock and Dotlick on decisions.

Four weeks after trimming Lawrence on her own mats, Tech was guest on the Appleton, Wisconsin campus for an exchange meet. Coach Weissman's boys turned out to be greedy visitors, taking the lion's share of the points in their 25-5 win. McDaniel, Dunne, Hanna and Kazmierowicz all won on pins, Till picking up three points on a time advantage. Nigrelli was the unfortunate one as in the first meet.

When Armour went to Wheaton for her return meet on February 23, she gave the prospective clergymen a battle and a scare, the like of which they hope not to see in some time. Tech won decisively the first four matches for fourteen points on three advantages and a pin. McDaniel and Till won over Ellingsworth and Dodd in the 118 and 125 pound divisions. Captain Dunne, after a long tussle with Hess went to work and pinned him in 7:40. Hanna was awarded a time advantage over Lazzaro. At this point in the meet the score stood at 14 for Armour and a big goose egg for Wheaton's state college wrestling squad. The ministers, disturbed by the standing and inspired by the coed's cheers, put on real pressure and finished off the meet in championship style, by taking the last four matches, all on pins, to win 20-14. Had Tech taken any one of the four weight matches on time only, she would have won the meet. Anyway, Captain Pett pinned Kubik in 1:22. Maxant wrestling with an injured finger tired under Berghouse, Kazmierowicz lasted seven minutes with his 175 pound opponent, and McIntyre lost to Schwetters. The meet, a heartbreaker to lose, showed definitely Wheaton's strength and excellence.

The meet with Culver on March 5, turned out a very close and interesting affair, but definitely an Armour victory. The final score stood at 24½ to 21½, one match deciding the meet. Armour's old guard of Maxant, McIntyre, Ropek and Hanna all gained pins and points while Kazmierowicz took his match on a time advantage. Grindall fought to a tie collecting 1½ points for Tech. Adelson, Kubik and Nigrelli dropped their matches by falls, all of which made the meet a very interesting one.

North Central lost for the second time against Tech's mat men on her return meet here. The Cardinals collected two pins, and a decision but Armour amassed three decisions and as many pins for a 19-13 victory. Dunne and Till won by the three count, while McDaniel, Balswick and Kazmierowicz took the referee's nod.

The Wheaton invitational meet held there on March 12 was an all day affair. When the shades of evening fell on the gym and the judges had totalled the points, Armour had earned a third place behind Wheaton and DeKalb. Armour's men took a second and four thirds. Tullgren wrestled to a second place in the 175 pound class, while McDaniels, Till, Dunne, and McIntyre tussled for thirds in their weights.

The final meet with Morton Junior College concluding the season was dropped by Tech.
