Armour Institute of Technology's newest organization is now a reality and the Evening Division Student Association, made up of "Night Hawks," as its members are already called, promises to become a motivating force in school activities.

The Association has already progressed to the point where it has drafted and ratified a Constitution and has planned a number of events for the pleasure and entertainment of the "Night Hawks." The Constitution has been hand-lettered on parchment paper and will be framed and hung in the school where all can see it. It is hoped that some day this document may be hung in a fitting club-room of the Association.

The driving purpose behind the Association can best be expressed by repeating the Preamble to the Constitution and the Purposes as stated in this document:

"We, the Evening Division Students of Armour Institute of Armour Institute of Technology, in order to form a more perfect association and enjoy greater benefits, do ordain and establish this Association.

The purpose of the organization is:

1. To effect a working cooperation among Evening Division students.
2. To cooperate with the Institute to promote its growth and broaden the scope of its benefits.
3. To effect an avenue for enjoyment of social relations, not possible in class-room association.
4. To sponsor meetings to which well known speakers will be invited to talk on subjects of mutual interest.
5. To effect a means whereby students of the Evening Division may meet to form small groups interested in specific subjects."
