The 1938 Tech golf season, although not a perfect record of fairway victories, proved to be a most interesting year. The team welcomed back six experienced men from the previous season as well as a promising group of aspirants. Inspired throughout its seven-meet schedule by Coach Sammy Bibb, the team went on to win four meets against three losses. Captain Twick Davidson, along with Carl Malmfeldt, Chuck Skuza, Jack Shanahan, and Ralph Schmal, were responsible for the greater part of the team's scoring.

The opening encounter was played April 23 against Loyola at Bob-O-Link, but despite several low scores turned in by the Tech golfers, the north siders walked away with the honors, winning $14\frac{1}{2}$ - $31\frac{1}{2}$. At the second meet the golfers engaged in matched play against the alumni at Southmoor Country Club. This time it was the varsity's turn to shine, romping over the alumni by the final score of 18-12.

May 7 the Tech men whipped Wheaton at Southmoor, but the week-end of May 10 saw two losses as the team journeyed to Illinois State Teachers at Charleston, Illinois, and thence to Terre Haute. Wabash increased the losses total as they won on the next day. The golfers closed the season by winning their return match with Wheaton.
