Coach Weissman

Manager Ropek

A writer's worst job is to sit down and attempt to record for posterity an unsuccessful team's season. Sonny Weissman, with this thought ever in mind, again produced a team that saves said writer this embarrassment. Looking at the wrestler's record we see seven wins out of eleven meets, which just on the face of figures falls in the category of another "success story." Delving a little deeper we find that the four winning opponents constitute just about the toughest foursome any wrestling team might want to run up against; namely, Purdue, Case, DeKalb, and Wheaton. And yet deeper as we go after "whys and wherefors" we find the Techawks taking Purdue into camp in a return bout, wrestling this time under the customary time advantage system. In other words the Boilermakers won the first meet by the point system where a win is up to the referee's decision as to which boy displayed the best form. Something like awarding points for fancy diving. Outstanding among the grapplers this year was Till, who was defeated only once, and that time at Purdue. Tullgren, graduating captain, was another to enjoy a successful season, winning a majority of his bouts. Kazmierowicz became more proficient as the season advanced, and along with Hanna, captain elect, will form the nucleus of next year's team.
