

INTERFRATERNITY ATHLETICS

The fraternity men, ever ready to drop books to take part in athletic competition, kept busy during every season of the past year.

In the spring, baseball and track occupied the interest of this group. The results of the competition showed Phi Pi Phi superior in the track and relay events, while Phi Kappa Sigma won the baseball championship.

Fall found football and bowling in popularity. Phi Pi Phi won the bowling cup for the third time, and the Delts annexed their second straight touchball championship.

Basketball and ping-pong came into their own at the same time, and when the smoke had cleared away, Phi Pi had regained the basketball trophy, while Pi Kap kept possession of the ping-pong cup.
