

Of real interest on Circus Day were the production attempts of the various fraternities. The wits and nits of each house put their heads together and an amused crowd saw some clever, and some not so clever, stage work. The Phi Pi's turned fanciful and converted Ogden Field into a dark forest. Snow White and her seven dwarf friends were hits and the judges gave them undisputed first place.

The impatient underclassmen indulged in gorilla tactics awaiting three p. m., while the juniors and seniors tussled in a more dignified manner. The juniors showed their prowess by pulling their senior rivals all over Ogden Field on the other end of a rope. Relinquishing the tug o' war, the graduates did manage to merge victorious in the wheelbarrow race.

Finish of the Frosh-Soph rush.
