In 1927 the Interfraternity Council was organized in order to form a close bond between the fraternities. The Council took the place of the loosely organized Interfraternity Rushing Committee, which had attempted to accomplish this aim, without much success.

The Interfraternity Council regulates affairs of common interest to the fraternities, including all forms of interfraternity competition, as sports, the fraternity sing, rushing, and scholarship.

The president of each recognized fraternity is that fraternity's representative to the Council. It is through this representative that every fraternity has a voice in interfraternity affairs.
