JUNIOR COMMISSION

"Fourth, Charlie," we repeated as we began that memorable ascent in the elevator for the first time. Surely there wasn't anything to equal this thrill since we had ridden the Skyride at the Fair in '33. We were back for our third registration, but already the difference was noticeable. As surely as we rose in body physically that day, so had we climbed to ecstatic heights spiritually.

As we glanced about we noted that those two destructive demons, calculus and physics, had taken their toll among our thinning ranks.

Dismissing such morbid thoughts, we threw out our chests and remembered that as Juniors we were ready to accept our duties and privileges. Class tradition
