

INTROSPECTIVE LANDSCAPE

LOCATION: BRIDGEPORT, CHICAGO, IL
LOT DIMENSIONS: 25' x 125'

The building sits on a standard 25' x 125' Chicago lot in Bridgeport, Chicago, IL. It houses 3 separate units within the building envelope. Conception of the project follows Frank Lloyd Wright's research in what he referred to as the Usonian houses, and the idea of ones desire for a connection with nature and the simplification of ones life that can come through more efficient living. Historically, the 3-flat walk up, has been the response to these site constraints, however, it denies occupants of a direct connection to the outdoors. These goals are accomplished in this project by the implementation of 3 courtyard atrium spaces, each dedicated to a separate unit, and through efficient and economic use of space available.
